

Some Notes on the Dhvanyāloka

Bruce M. Perry

Updated by Justin K. Lowe*

October 10, 2002, Updated: July 6, 2025

Introduction

One of the principal achievements of Indian aesthetics (alanikāra) is its analysis of the nature of the poetic experience. According to its two foremost theorists, poetry consists in the power of suggestion (dhvani), and, conversely, produces in the audience an experience of relishing (rasa) that is not emotional but transcendental (alaukika). The crucial texts of these theorists, however, do not lend themselves to a straightforward study. Ānandavardhana wrote verses (kārikā), upon which he composed a commentary (vṛtti), the Dhvanyāloka. Abhinavagupta subsequently composed a commentary on both the verses and commentary of Ānandavardhana, called the Locana. Given the length, complexity, and seeming randomness of topics taken up in these works, a simplifying approach seems in order. To provide a roadmap, as it were, of the rasa-theory, a chapter from A. B. Keith's The Sanskrit Drama, "The Sentiments", is first provided. Select passages from Ānandavardhana and Abhinavagupta, from the excellent translation of Ingalls, Masson, and Patwardhan, are then presented; these selections contain the most direct, if not exhaustive, formulations or discussions of dhvani and rasa.

Please note that the scholarly footnotes to the selections are supplied for completeness' sake only: they are not crucial to understanding the texts. The complete translation will be on reserve in the library.

Bruce M. Perry
10/23/02

Abbreviations Used

- K Kārikā (verse) of the Dhvanyāloka ('Light on Suggestion'), by Rājānaka Ānandavardhana, Kashmiri [9th AD] (also referred to as 'Ānanda')
- A Ānandavardhana's vṛtti (commentary) on the Kārikā of their Dhvanyāloka. NB: The vṛtti (commentary) following each Kārikā was not originally broken into sections. The a, b, c, etc. lettering was done by the translators Ingalls, Masson, and Patwardhan (IMP).
- L Locana ('The Eye'), commentary by Abhinavagupta, Kashmiri [10th AD] (also referred to as 'Abhinava')

Some Authors Mentioned

- Bhāmaha author of works on literary criticism, largely concerned with the figures of speech [8th AD]
- Bharata (legendary) author of the Nāṭyaśāstra (BhNS), an ancient manual on dramaturgy, source of first eight sthāyibhāva and rasa noted above.
- Bhaṭṭanāyaka critic of Ānandavardhana, apparently a Mīmāṃsaka, answered by Abhinavagupta

Sections of text included in EC Reading

Translator's Introduction (15–17); 1.1 K, A, L (47–49 partial); –skipping–; 1.1 L (partial 51–52 partial); 1.1a A & L (54–58); –skipping–; 1.1e A & L (partial 67–73); –skipping–; 1.4 K, A, L, 1.4a A & L, 1.4b A (78–84); 1.4b L partial text (84); 1.4b L partial text & footnotes (92); 1.4c A & L (98–99); –skipping–; 1.4g A & L, 1.5 K, A, L (105–119); –skipping–; 1.18 K, A, L (188–196); –skipping–; 2.3–2.5 K, A, L {for all in this range} (214–233); –skipping–; 2.7–2.10 K, A, L {for all in this range} (251–260); –skipping–; 4.5 K, A (690–696); 4.5 L partial text (696)

*Available at: <https://github.com/julowe/st-johns/blob/main/dhvanyAloka/dhvanyAloka-terms-additional.tex>

Expanded List of Terms

Translation of Sanskrit terms in “quotes” are from IMP translation, unless otherwise noted. I have attempted to provide the reference from where each term is first encountered. Notation follows section numbering in IMP translation. Page numbers are given when translation of K. Kris. is used. Alternate translations are separated by a comma (whether from a subsequent section of IMP text, or from K. Kris.). Significantly differing definitions or usages are separated by a semicolon. Footnotes are marked by a dot, e.g. “1.1 L.1” is footnote 1 for the Locana of 1.1. “(M.W. p.#)” refers to a page from Monier-Williams Sanskrit—English Dictionary, 1899 printing.

	sthāyibhāva	abiding emotion	rasa	flavor, sentiment
1	rati	sexual desire, love	śṛṅgāra	erotic
2	hāsa	laughter	hāsyā	comic
3	śoka	grief	karuṇa	tragic, compassion
4	krodha	anger	raudra	furious, cruel
5	utsāha	heroic energy	vīra	heroic
6	bhaya	fear	bhayānaka	fearsome, timorous
7	jugupsā	disgust	bībhatsā	gruesome, loathsome
8	vismaya	wonder, amazement	adbhuta	wondrous
9			śānta	peace

NB: The introduction to the IMP translation of the Dhvanyāloka provides that the first 8 sthāyibhāva and rasa are given by BhNS 6.17 and “To these Ānanda adds a ninth, the rasa of peace (śānta).” (p.16)

1. dhvani “suggestion” (1.1 K, 1.1 A) Also “suggested meaning” (1.4g A). The three types of dhvani per 1.4a A are:

- (a) vastudhvani “the suggestion of a fact” (first seen 1.4a A, defined 1.1e L) of the “sequential variety” of dhvani (2.3 L.11). From:

- vastumātra “a simple thing” (1.4a A)

- (b) alaṅkāradhvani “the suggestion of a figure of speech” (1.1e L); “second variety of suggested meaning” (1.4g A). From:

- alaṅkāra “figures of speech” (1.1 L, 1.1a A, 1.4g L), “ornaments of sound” (2.4 A)

- (c) rasadhvani “suggested rasa” (1.5 L), it is the “soul of poetry” (1.5 K). From: “not only rasa, but bhāva, rasābhāsa, bhāvābhāsa, bhāvodaya, bhāvasandhi, bhāvaśabala, bhāvaprasāma. For definitions see 1.4g and for examples 2.3 L” and 2.3 K. This is also referred to by:

- rasādi rendered as “rasa, etc.” in several places in the IMP translation. Explained as: “The term refers to all elements that belong to rasadhvani” (1.4a A, defined 2.5 L) NB: ādi: “etc.” (2.3 L)

2. rasa “flavor”, “sentiment” (TODO REF) — based on the sthāyibhāvas respectively, as shown in the table above.

3. dhvanana “hinting” (2.4 L)

4. vyañjana “suggesting” (2.4 L)

5. bhāva “emotion” (1.4g L, 2.3 K) [K. Kris. Also B. Perry’s translation, from IMP’s Introduction]; “realization” (1.1e L, quote from BhNS)

6. sthāyibhāva “abiding emotion” (TODO REF), “basic emotion” (1.5 L, 1.18 L)

7. anubhāva “consequent” (TODO REF)

8. vibhāva “determinant” (TODO REF); “object” (1.1e L, quote from BhNS)

- (a) ālambanavibhāva “objective determinant”

- (b) uddīpanavibhāva “stimulative determinant”

9. vyabhicāribhāva “transitory state” (1.5 L), “transient state of mind” (2.3 L), “transient emotion” (1.18 L, 2.3 L)

10. vyabhicārin See vyabhicāribhāva, # 9

11. bhākta “associated meaning” (1.1 K), “associated sense” (1.1 L), “regularly fed by another, a dependent” (M.W. p.751)

- bhākṭi “associated meaning” (1.18 A), “associated usage” (1.18 L)

12. —1 “outside the scope of speech”? (1.1 K) TODO: a term, or just often used phrase?

13. guṇa the “qualities” (1.1 L, 1.1a A, 2.7 K & A), “virtues” (EC p. 145?)

- (a) mādhurya “sweetness” (2.7 K.1), “Sweetness has its seat in poetry that is full of this flavor [śṛṅgāra].”

- (b) ojas “force” (2.7 K.1), “strength” (2.9 K)

- (c) prasāda “clarity” (2.7 K.1), “perspicuity” [K. Kris. 2.10 K?, p.???], NB: “[clarity] is a quality common to all rasas”

- (d) "...these are the śabdaguṇas mentioned by Bhāmaha, Daṇḍin, and Vāmana. Ānandavardhana completely altered the older teaching by bringing them under the system of rasas. For him the guṇas are the properties of the rasas; see 2.7 below. Instead of the ten guṇas mentioned by older writers, Ānanda accepts only the three mentioned here." (2.4 L.35)
14. vr̥tti 1. "commentary" used by Abhinavagupta to refer to Ānandavardhana commentary {vs. Ānandavardhana's Kārikā}; 2. "simple alliteration" — "The word vr̥tti ... bears two different technical meanings in this book, one derived from Udbhaṭa the other from BhNS. The word is here used in Udbhaṭa's sense, who applies this term to the three varieties of simple alliteration, that is, what later writers call vr̥tṭyanuprāsa. He calls the three types paraṣā (harsh), upanāgarikā (polite), and grāmyā (rustic or vulgar). He calls the third type also komalā (soft)." (1.1a A.4)
15. rīti "style" (1.1a A, 1.1a L)
16. sahṛdayāṇām "of sensitive reader" (1.1e A, 1.1e L, also 1.1 L.1)
17. sahṛdaya "having their hearts with it" (1.1e L)
18. sahṛdayatva "literary sensitivity" (1.1e L.8)
19. prasiddha 1. "well known to all" and "ornamented" (1.4 L) {used in 1.4 K: "well-known elements [of poetry]" & in 1.4 A: "known, ornamented, elements [of poetry]"}, "external constituents" [K. Kris. p.8]
20. lakṣa "that by which something is recognized" (1.1e L)
21. lakṣaṇa "definition" (1.1e L)
22. guṇavṛtti "secondary usage" (1.18 K), "indication" [K. Kris. p.35], but K. Kris.: lakṣaṇayā "secondary usage" (2.9 A, p.51) which in IMP is "metonymy"? "secondary or associated meaning" by Ānanda (1.1 K.2) Also see term # 13 and # 14
- Ānanda's two types of "secondary-/associated meaning" (1.1 K.2)
 - (a) upacāra "metaphorical"
 - (b) lakṣaṇā "relational", "metonymy" (2.9 A)
 - Abhinava's two types of "secondary-/associated meaning" (1.1 K.2)
 - (a) gauṇa "metaphorical", "qualitative" (1.18 L)
 - (b) lākṣaṇika "relational"
23. bhāsa true or proper correlate (4.5 A, assumed from term # 24), "impression made on the mind" (M.W. p.756)
24. ābhāsa "false or improper correlate" (4.5 A), "semblance" (from usage in compounds, e.g. term # 25, 26), "imitation" (2.3 L)
25. rasābhāsa "semblance of sentiment" [K. Kris.] (2.3 K) Also see term # 2 & # 24
26. bhāvābhāsa "improper emotion" (1.4g L); "semblance of mood" [K. Kris.] (2.3 K) Also see term # 5 & # 24
27. bhāvaprasānti "(rise and) cessation" of mood/emotion [bhāva, term # 5] (2.3 K) Also see ninth rasa, śānta ('peace')
28. bhāvaprasāma "termination" of mood/emotion (1.5 L), "the cessation of an emotion" (2.3 L), {Seemingly used interchangeably with bhāvaprasānti term # 27}
29. rasavadalaṅkāra "figurative sentiment" [K. Kris. p.41] (?) See term # 30
30. rasavat a "figure of speech" different from rasadhvani (2.4 Intro. A), "that which contains rasa in a subordinated position" (2.3 L), "Daṇḍin says merely that it was a figure charming with rasa (2.275). Bhāmaha says little more: 'The figure rasavat is where the rise of a rasa as śṛṅgāra is clearly exhibited. It is a locus of rasa, sthāyibhāva, sañcārīn (= vyabhicārīn), vibhāva, and dramatic portrayal' (2.4 A.1)
31. ——— "non-sequential type" of dhvani (2.3 K), "undiscerned sequentiality" [K. Kris. p.41, 2.3 K], "without apparent sequence [from literal meaning to suggested meaning]" (2.4 Intro. A) [same translation, K. Kris. p.41 last paragraph]
32. —4 "pleasing to the ear" (2.7 A), "sound-harmony" [K. Kris. p.51], Note: "found alike in force [and sweetness]" WHERE FROM?
33. dīpti "excitement" (2.9 K, A, L), "fiery" (1.1a L)
34. racanā "structures"? (2.10 A), "composition" [K. Kris. p.???]
35. śabdaḥ (a): "a word which gives rise to suggestion" (1.13 L)
36. arthah (b) "a meaning which gives rise to a suggestion" (1.13 L)
37. vyāpāraḥ (c) "operation" (1.5 L), "the operation, the suggestion of the implicit meaning" (1.13 L)
38. vyañgyam (d) "the suggested meaning itself" (1.13 L)
39. samudāyaḥ (e) "the group; or a poem which embodies all the above factors" (a–d) (1.13 L) Note: (a–e) given by Abhinavagupta (1.1 K.1, EC p.76)
40. samaya "conventions by which words transmit meaning" (1.1 L) {Note: this is an alternative idea to dhvani, argued against in the Dhvanyāloka}
41. anubandha "pertinent point" (1.1 L.1, EC p.79)
- (a) abhidheya "the subject to be treated"
 - (b) prayojana "purpose"

- (c) sambandha “suppose that sambandha refers to the connection between the subject and the purpose”
- (d) adhikāra “the qualification required of the reader”
42. lakṣayatām those “who are noticing” (1.1e A); “describing it by means of a definition” (1.1e L). Possibly used differently by Ānandavardhana and Abhinavagupta, see 1.1e A.2.
43. ānanda “bliss” (1.1e L), “delight”? (1.1 K), also name of the author {Ānandavardhana}
44. saṅghaṭanā “arrangement” (1.1a L), “texture” (1.1a L), “certain degrees of compounding” (1.1a A.3)
45. carvaṇā “tasting” (2.4 L)
46. rasacarvaṇā “relishing of rasa” (1.1e L), described as “it is the relishing of rasa that gives [poetry] its life” (1.1e L)
47. rasanā “relishing (rasanā) is a special kind of perception” (2.4 L)
48. anurāga “stimulation” (1.4a L)
49. abhidhā “designation” (1.4a L), “denotation” (1.5 L); “name, appellation” or “the literal power or sense of a word” or “a word, sound” (M.W. p.63)
50. bhāvanā “aesthetic efficacy” (1.4a L) “i.e., the ability to create rasa” (2.4 L); same translation for bhāvakatva “efficacy” (2.4 L)
51. vastu “situation” (1.4g L)
52. āsvāda “relish” (1.5 L.2), “relishing” (2.4 L)
53. āsvādyamāna “(the process of) being relished” (1.4g L)
54. hṛdayasaṃvāda “sympathetic response” (1.5 L.2, 2.4 L)
55. druti “melting of the mind”? {a kind of relishing/aesthetic enjoyment} (1.5 L.3, 2.4 L)
56. vistara “expansion” {a kind of relishing/aesthetic enjoyment} (1.5 L.3, 2.4 L)
57. vikāsa “radiance” {a kind of relishing/aesthetic enjoyment} (1.5 L.3, 2.4 L), “expansion” (2.9 L)
58. bhoga “enjoyment” (2.4 L), “aesthetic pleasure” (2.4 L)
59. bhogakṛttva “efficacy of aesthetic enjoyment” or “the power of aesthetic enjoyment” (2.4 L)
60. bhogīkaraṇa “causing aesthetic enjoyment” (2.4 L)
61. cittavṛtti “stable state of mind” (1.4g L), “thought-trend” (1.5 L), NB: the sthāyibhāvas are a type of ‘state of mind’ (2.3 L)
62. parisphurati “it makes itself felt”?? (1.4g L)
63. sphurati “makes itself felt” (1.4g L) TODO: diff from 62??
64. vāsanā “latent impressions” (1.4g L) {text has note: ‘see 2.4 L.6’}, “minds are characterized by a great variety of latent impressions (vāsanā).” (2.4 L), “proclivity” (2.7 L)
65. sāmāthyā “force”: “When the suggestion of rasa is ascribed to a word, the force (sāmāthyā), that is, the cooperating force, viz., the vibhāvas, etc., is the directly denoted meaning.” (1.4g L)
66. śakti “force”? : “When the suggestion of rasa is ascribed to the directly denoted meaning ... then the force (sāmāthyā, śakti) of this meaning is the totality of denotative words arranged in their particular way.” (1.4g L)
67. saṃsarga “syntax” (1.4g L)
68. ——— “memory elements” (1.5 L)
69. alaukika “super-normal” (1.18 L)
70. rasatā “aesthetic relish” (1.18 L)
71. rasapratīti “apprehension of rasa” (1.18 L)
72. vijñā “(give) understanding”?? (1.18 L)
73. anubhāvayati “experience” (1.18 L)
74. anubhavana “experiencing” (1.18 L)
75. saṃskāra “memory bank” (1.18 L)
76. rasyamāṇatā “a being tasted, a gustation, of beauty” (1.18 L)
77. svabhāvavacana “one’s own nature’ (2.3 L)
78. prakāra “variety” (2.3 L)
79. pratipatti “apprehension” (2.4 L)
80. pratipattuḥ “audience’s” {pratipattṛ is the root noun} (2.3 L)
81. asaṃlakṣyakramavyaṅgya “———”?? (2.3 L)
82. pratīyate “perceived” (2.4 L)
83. gocara “direct object” delete?? (2.4 L)
84. avabhāsa “appearance (or semblance, avabhāsa) of a stable emotion in the actor” (2.4 L)
85. vyutpādana “educative effect” (2.4 L)
86. rāga “passion” (2.8 L) TODO: correct? keep?